Saint Gobain adhere to the most stringent quality standards to guarantee optimum personal safety, user comfort and compliance with European health, safety and environmental standards. Responsibility to customers, particularly in the area of health & safety, is taken very seriously. This level of care and responsibility is also extended to its staff, so when they needed to be trained on Employees' and Employers' Health and Safety information, Sharon Clutterbuck, QEHS Systems Officer at Saint Gobain came to PPD.

"PPD has supported our training needs in a variety of ways in the past few years, by providing bespoke training sessions on risk assessment, management and employee responsibilities. PPD also provided us with a first aid scenario to help us test our first aid systems during a recent health and safety awareness day", says Sharon.

One of her team had attended an external training course delivered by Dave Middlemiss of PPD, held at Stroud College. He gave great feedback about the course and his recommendation that PPD be used for Health and Safety training, which was pursued.

Sharon adds: "Our staff enjoyed PPD's pro-active approach and are now much more knowledgeable on the Employees' and Employers' Health and Safety information. I would definitely recommend them for health and safety training - they're very good value for money and have identified ways they can help us with other training requirements, so the relationship is ongoing."

PPD delivered exactly what we asked for in a very professional and comprehensive manner.
